

The Weekly Museum.

[VOL. IV.]

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 8, 1791.

[NUMBER 178.]

NEW-YORK: Printed and Published by JOHN HARRISON, at his Printing-Office, No. 3, Peck-Slip.

The MAGDALEN.

Or the real History of an Unfortunate Young Lady.

I AM the daughter of a tradesman in this city: My father, though engaged in a reputable and advantageous business, had yet no right to the privileges of a gentleman; but my mother desired to assume those privileges; and from her marriage determined to live and act as a gentlewoman. With this view she always followed the fashion: Her dress was ever in the mode: And her dining-room was furnished in taste; the chimney-piece had no small share of flow china-ware; and the curtains were made after the most elegant manner; and the whole floor was covered with Wilton carpet. You may be satisfied from this disposition of my mother's, that she was careful, whatever else she might forget, to instruct her children in politeness. Indeed, Sir, even from the time that I can remember ought, I remember nothing so diligently inculcated upon me, as lessons of my own importance, gentility, and beauty, and the necessity of setting off myself to the best advantage. Imagine not, that I mean to dishonor my mother by repeating these things; which may appear trifling, but where in reality the inlets to my ruin: I reverence the memory of my parent; but by mentioning her mistakes, perhaps, I may happily warn others.

At the age of fifteen I lost my mother, who left my father a widower, with myself, a sister, and two brothers; and, as I was the eldest and my father was very fond of me, the chief conduct of domestic affairs fell upon me. But oh! how ill capacitated was I for this, who had been initiated into all the fashionable diversions and amusements, for which I had contracted an insuperable fondness, as they led me to display those personal graces, which alone I was taught to cultivate; and which, alas! I valued but too highly! My mother's death tended to advance me more early into a state of womanish behavior; and my father gratified too blindly my wild inclinations. As I heard only general and random lessons of virtue, and very few or occasional instructions in religion, it is not to be supposed, that mere female honour could give me great strength to withstand temptations. But, indeed, I thought little of temptations: As I scarcely knew what was vice, so it gained very little of my reflection: My chief wish was to be admired; and my grand aim and pursuit, to get a very fine and wealthy husband. Chariots, country houses, routs, dress, and gaiety, occupied my waking and sleeping thoughts.

Thus a year and more run on: During which time I wanted not admirers; for I must be allowed to say, my person was pleasing and attractive. Amongst these, the son of an opulent merchant in our neighbourhood attended me most assiduously, and his endearing behaviour soon won my unsuspecting heart. My father encouraged his visits; which yet he himself desired might be as secret as possible: "For his father he informed us, would be greatly offended, if acquainted with his attachments to me, the only thing, he daily protested, which prevented his marrying me." I heard his oaths, I listened and believed. But how distant was I from suspecting any dishonourable intentions, when, in all the fervor of passion, he would curse his fate, and the vile folly of mankind, in fostering priests to obstruct their bliss by a foolish ceremony, devised solely for their profit; when, in the sight of God, (if there was a God who took notice of such things) an union of hearts, and mutual oaths and vows, must constitute a marriage. Much of this I often heard; and love blinded my eyes to its intent.

In the mean time a sudden shock overwhelmed our family in the deepest distress: My father became a bankrupt; and the miseries impending over his children so afflicted him, that he turned perfectly melancholy. This accident was Mr. **'s triumph: His friendship and tenderness for me on this occasion was such, that I fear it would have prevailed over a heart better fortified. Wonder not, that it prevailed over me, whose heart was melting, with the softest love to him! Cruel deceiver, he persuaded me to leave that distressful scene, and to take possession of a lodging, which he had provided, he told me, till better times would allow him publicly to acknowledge me as his wife. My father's brother took the management of his affairs, and the kind protection of my brothers and sister; while I, was left to them; drowned in a state of insensibility, tho' not without the tenderest regard to my dear relations; whom I endeavoured to persuade, that I was married to Mr. **, but they were too wise: They could not be deceived; and foretelling me my fate with severity enough, utterly cast me off.

Possessed of Mr. **'s affection, I felt, I conceived no loss or hurt from any others neglect. And my heart can bear me witness, that I never knew a thought, or indulged a wish from him. Seven months he continued all I could fancy; and I began to believe that every thing (though little enough) which I had heard of formal virtue, was a name; and that outward ceremonies, and the like, tended only to the infelicity of the married state. But soon, too, I was awakened from this golden dream. Mr. ** grew tho'tful in my company, began to make his visits, less frequent and more short; urging great business in the counting-house, the preparation of ships, and I knew not what: It gave me pain, but I suspected nothing. One day, however, when I was at the window, waiting for him as usual with fond impatience, a messenger came with a letter: But what words can express my anguish upon reading it! It was to inform me, that his father had found out his connection with me, and had provided a match for him with a lady of very great fortune; which since it was impossible for him to refuse, as he must thereby forfeit all his father's regard, he hoped I would make myself easy; as he would take care of the child I should bring into the world, (for I was then with child by him) and would procure me a good place after my delivery; to support me till which time, he sent me a bill of thirty pounds.

My torture and distress were beyond all description, I will not therefore attempt it; a miscarriage ensued, and a dangerous illness, in which I had good hope that I should have finished a burdensome life: Though the dread I had of something future, deterred me from any thing violent, to which my distresses frequently prompted me. For though I wrote, and entreated but for one interview, would you believe that I intreated all in vain? This hard-hearted man, this most unkind and cruel source of all my sorrow, would scarcely deign me a reply! My relations were equally obdurate: I desired but only to see my sister; my aunt and uncle sent me only in return to my request, sharp upbraidings and savage counsels! Gracious heaven, what a situation was mine! How early did I begin to drink of the bitter cup of penance, for my unlawful pleasures and criminal indulgencies!

My youth supported me under this heavy load; the heaviest of which was my solitude, and the want of some kind female, or some friend to console me, and to amuse my gloomy thoughts. My nurse, to whom I had frequently made my complaint, and from whom I had concealed no part of my afflictions, at my repeated request, was so kind (I conceived it kind) to introduce to me a lady of the neighbourhood, as she told me; whose frank and generous converse soon engaged my foolish heart; and I thought myself happy in the friendship of Mrs. Marriot. Mrs. Marriot took me to her country-house; several ladies were recommended by her acquaintance. Two or three gentlemen paid us short visits; and after a day or two's stay there, we returned to town together; but, as it happened to be late, she pressed me much to take a bed at her house. I complied, and laid me down to sleep under her care and custody, dreaming of nothing ill; when I kened in the night, by the admission of a man into my room and bed; whom I found vain to resist, as he informed me truly ere I was, what I must expect, and how unreasonable and unavailing any refractory conduct would prove. The terror of the scene deprived me of my senses, and I have no recollection of myself; but as surrounded the following day by Mrs. Marriot, and several of her house, using their endeavours to support my life, of which they seemed almost to despair. (The remainder in our next.)

To an ELDERLY GENTLEMAN in LOVE.
SAY, what is love? Oh! can the muse's art Paint the warm feelings of an amorous heart;
 Describe at large the meaning of that name,
 From what first origin, and whence it came;
 By what great instinct joint affections roll,
 Meet in one stream, and form a lovely whole?
 Sure of the blessings that kind Heaven bestows,
 To laugh at care, and lighten human woes.
 This brilliant gem has ever brightest shone
 From the low cottage, to the tyrant's throne:
 For this, Othello's self had heav'd a sigh,
 And wip'd the tear from Desdemona's eye;
 With lenient hand lull'd all those pangs to rest,
 That fell Iago, planted in his breast;
 Had death not wing'd with jealousy his dart,
 To the soft mansion of the fair-one's heart.
 For this alone the sons of fashion rove,
 Quit the gay town, and haunt the silent grove;
 The monarch hates his baubles of renown,
 His painted sceptre, and his spangled crown;
 The swain no longer plods his weary way,
 But quits the field, and leaves his flock to stray,
 Whilst echo mourns in some sequester'd vale,
 The plaintive murmur of his lengthen'd tale.
 Ye sons of youth, implanted on whose mein
 The rosy tints of smiling health are seen;
 Can I but laugh, when age dares love pursue,
 Crouds the fair scene to join the happy few?
 When trembling eighty with a boyish pride,
 Sighs for a cane, and flings the crutch aside:
 See it, alas! each precious hour beguile,
 To tinge a face unconscious of a smile;
 To smooth a wrinkle, teach the eye to rove,
 Call back the signs of long-departed love;
 Love, that can never kindle real fire,
 Loose the warm soul, or wing it with desire.
 Is it for you, (at best, who can but prove Memento mori to the maid you love)
 The sprightly Delia, to her toilet flies,
 Adds art to nature, lustre to her eyes;
 Eager to summon ev'ry latent grace,
 That decks the features of a female face?
 Sighs that can melt, and looks that must forgive,
 Bid the sad lover hope, and wish to live.
 Is it for you that fancy's hand supplies
 The magic ribband in its varied dyes;
 The dazzling gem, the feather's nodding plume,
 With all the pow'rs of cambric and perfume?
 You, dotard, vilest reason calls aloud,
 And bids you seek a mistress in a shroud?
 Can reason's voice light Hymen's torch anew,
 Blend you h with age, the myrtle with the yew?
 Can mirth ne'er sing, but you must join the song,
 And lip a tale that trembles on your tongue?
 Oh, Venus! Goddess of the melting sigh,
 Fair auburn lock, and mildly-swimming eye;
 Let love at such a price be never sold,
 Nor tempt a nymph to barter charms for gold!

INTEMPERANCE.

LAWGIVERS, and men in authority, should consider themselves, as they are, the guardians and protectors of the public health and economy for the time being, and that they are accountable at the tribunal of conscience and reason, for the good or bad use they make of their power; they should say to themselves, as a Trajan said to himself when he was Emperor, "Now I am Emperor, I will do what I wished Emperors to do before I was Emperor." Fifteen years experience has taught us that the earth will bring forth its fruits, and that men may eat, drink and sleep, as much and as well, without Nobles and Kings, as they did with. Let us next depose tyrant Rum—let the privilege of selling rum be confined to Apothecaries, and let a dollar a gallon duty be paid on every gallon consumed in the government, it will then be sufficiently cheap for medicinal purposes. A tyrant so mischievous and cruel, cannot be too straightly confined.

How many wives and children have been obliged to leave the desirable mansion-house and homestead, with all its delightful yards, gardens, walks, meadows, springs and orchards, occasioned by the loss of time and expence of the husband's drinking rum—The wretched lot so constantly drenched in rum, as never to afford time to superintend his own ground, or his own team, when all is spent, we see late in life, compelled by hard necessity, cultivating his neighbour's field, for a part of the crop, which he wheels home in a barrow.

For the WEEKLY MUSEUM.

Mr. Harrison,

IN the New-York Journal of the 24 ult. I observed a catalogue of questions and answers, respecting the regulations of this city, signed "Next door to a Livery stable." The piece being scarce worth a remark is the reason it has not before been noticed; but lest Mr. Stable should think we slight him, we will re-print his questions and answer them dispensing with the old proverb, that says silence is the best answer to a foolish question.

Q Does not Bake Houses endanger neighbour's property.

A. Does not every one who uses bread, know the benefit of a Bake-House? and may we not conclude that the writer of the questions lives on supann, and knows not the value of bread?

Q 2. Are not stables public nuisances?

A. Would not hay, put in the street or yard, endanger the city much more than when under cover? and why we not conclude the author more affrighted with the effluvia of the stable, than with the danger of fire?

Q 3. Are not Cooper's shops dangerous to the public?

A. Has there ever been an instance in this city of a fire breaking out in a Cooper's shop? And would not the firing a case in a shop, be double the danger of that in the street? and is not the querrist beholden to the Cooper for the cask for his beef and pork, if he has any, for flour we wont say, for he may buy his indian meal in bags.

Q 4. Is there no place where they would be as useful, and not endanger their neighbours property.

A. I suppose Mr. Next-Door, would have all the Mechanics expelled the city, and ordered to New-Jersey shore, where they may have their works go by water, like a snuff-mill, and each inhabitant wanting either bread, soap, candles, case or a pump-bolt, must have to pay ferrriage and stage hire for every trifle.

OB. 5. Next Door to a Cooper's Shop.

Mr. Harrison,

The following being a fact, by giving it a place in your next Museum, you will oblige Z. A.

A FEW days ago a lady in the Fly-Market, took off her glove to take up some fruit to look at, the countrywoman asked the reason of her hand being so white? The lady replied, "it was because she wore dog-skin gloves." "Bless me!" cried the old woman, "my husband has wore dog-skin breeches these three years, and his b—de is as brown as a nutmeg."

For the WEEKLY MUSEUM.

THEATRICAL POSTS.

MAJOR General W-g-n-l has resigned his staff, which he bore with such honour for so many years, under the Generals H-l-l-am and H-n-y. The cause of this resignation is variously talked of: Some attribute it to the success he has had in a certain speculating medium; others (who seem to speak with more confidence) give out that he was disgusted at his not being admitted to some prerogatives that were exclusively invested in the Generals and others, that it is only a feint in expectation of promotion.

A certain Lady of great tactical abilities, who is well known for her attachment to the General; and the part she bears in his camifades, has as usual joined with the General. And Colonel M—, her cara-spousa, who is one of the most complying in the world (though a clever old gentleman, but the greatest scrob in the corps) by the injunctions of his nominal rib, completes the triumvirate.

PROMOTIONS.

Mr. J. M-r-t-n, a young gentleman of promising military abilities, has entered as a volunteer, and is to serve as Aid-de-Camp to Generals H-l-l-am and H-n-y, and is to take upon himself a considerable command this campaign.

Major R-b-n, late from the West Indies, a gentleman of great mental abilities, is to assume a small command.

Doctor V— is to serve occasionally in a coup-de-main; in consequence of which, he is to receive part of the booty. But unfortunately for the Doctor, he has a great a penchant for the Doctor; which occasions him to view cates through a false medium. His affections, we are afraid, in this case, will retard his promotion, as they cause him very often to deviate from the centre, not much to his own respectability or the regiment which he belongs to.

Mr. R-nk-n, not from his own intrinsic merit, but that of a second perion, is raised to the office of Recording Secretary.

The Vocal Band is considerably recruited by the additional name of Van Hagen, &c. &c.

For the WEEKLY MUSEUM.

Mr. Printer.

IT has been my misfortune to have passed my thirtieth year (it is not necessary to say exactly how much) without having entered into that state which shelters our sex from reproach, and exposes them too often to misery and wretchedness. But I desire you to understand that I have not remained single for the want of offers; I have had sweet hearts of all ages, and conditions, and have as often refused the addresses of the old and indigent, as I have been deserted by the young and wealthy; so that you see, Mr. Printer, an unmarried life hath been my choice, and yet I am not suffered to enjoy the comforts of it in peace and quiet.

No longer ago than last Sunday, a pert little hussy not out of her teens, with a young jackdaw by her side, accosted me as I returned from church, "Your servant Miss Havebeen, I am glad to see you so well recovered from your indisposition."—"Indisposition Miss Forward! thank God I have been in good health." "Lord bless me," replied the minx, "how the world is given to scandal! It was reported all over town that you took to your bed in consequence of Mr Scrip's leaving you in so ungenteel a manner. Scandalous fellow, I assure you it griev'd me to the heart to hear of his behaviour, though I hope you treat it with that contempt it deserves. Lord Miss Havebeen, you are not so old but you may have many lovers yet; my aunt Rachel, you know, was married the other day at forty-six."—"Forty-six! Miss Forward," cried I, "forty-six, I hope you dont"—But before I could finish my question, she dropped a curtsey; and taking her spark by the arm, tripped away giggling and laughing at the mortification of the poor Old-Maid—And before I could reach my own door, Peggy Primrose, who to my knowledge, is in her thirty-fifth year, and never had an offer in her life, came mincing up to me with a "How do you do Miss Havebeen; sure I hope the report about Mr. Scrip isn't true. Well some people are doomed to misfortune! Lord how sorry I am!"—And without waiting to hear whether the tale was true or false, away she pranced, leaving the subject of her pity to curle her consolation.

Now I earnestly intreat you Mr. Printer, to signify to all those who are inclined to shew their compassion to us deserted females, if they will have us to be deserted, not to insult us with their concern, the most cutting of all the several species of contumely. Terms of reproach custom hath enabled us to endure, Tabbies, Cats, &c. are appellations comparatively inoffensive; but to be harassed with pity, and haunted to death with commiseration, it is impossible to bear.

Your most unhappy reader,
O. 3. RUTH HAVEBEEN.

NEW-YORK, October 8, 1791.

Capt. Drinker of the brig Hetty, who arrived at Philadelphia from Bordeaux, on the 25th ult. lat. 40. 42. long. 37. fell in with a wreck full of water, both masts cut away, stern all out, and to appearance had been burnt; her bowsprit standing as usual, main hatch closed, no body on board, and appeared to have been a schooner.

By the schooner Hardy, Capt. Green, which sailed from Cape Francois the 12th ult. and arrived at Philadelphia on Saturday morning, we have received intelligence, that the mulattoes and free-blacks have got fire arms, &c out of the King's store at the Cape. And done more execution against the black insurgents than the white inhabitants had been able to effect: Above 3000 of the insurgents have been killed. They are however, still strong, and have fortified themselves in two or three different parts of the country. The whites have with difficulty been able to defend the town of Port au Prince on the western part, and Cape Francois on the northward. All applications to the British and Spanish islands for succour, were refused.

The embargo was taken off American vessels at the time of Capt. Green's sailing; but it was thought there would probably be another embargo laid in case the disturbances were not quieted.

Extract of a letter from Cape Francois, Sept. 7.

Since my last I have not been able to leave the army for a moment, which is actually employed against the negro insurgents—They have massacred a great number of the whites, and have taken prisoners some females of that complexion, whom they force to do the duties of servants. They have burned more than 200 sugar plantations. I was compelled to escape by flight, and could save nothing. My wardrobe, my furniture and plate are all in their possession. We have had several engagements with them, but without any decisive success.

"Our commanding officer was killed by my side, as well as several officers, who were planters in the district. I hope we shall be more fortunate in our next attack. M. de Rouvray, whom you are acquainted with, is commander in chief. The time is pressing, and I cannot give you a more particular detail at present."

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in Alexandria, to his friend in Philadelphia, dated Sept. 24.

"We have had a most horrid murder committed about 20 or 25 miles from this place, on the Patowmac called Port Tobacco, by a young man of that place, who had been brought up in a counting house. He left town on Friday, and went to see a friend in the country—from whom he had a power of attorney to manage his estate, and on Saturday morning shot his friend as he lay in bed—locked him up in a chest, and buried him on Monday night in the yard; during which time, his mind was in such a confused state, that he could not tell a straight story. First he said he was gone to one place, then to another—He was, at last, suspected. They searched for the body, and found it. The head was very much bruised. The perpetrator by this time had fled; but was pursued, and soon overtook. He confessed the fact, but said it was accidental. His trial will come on in a few days; and his friends expect to save him, by pleading insanity."

The Russians are promised land and money, and plunder and jewels, and all the fine women in the Seraglio, if they conquer Constantinople this summer; and the Turks are assured of a seat in Paradise, riches upon earth, and certain immortality of bliss, if they gain a victory over the Emperor's troops, and bring her grey hairs with sorrow to the grave."

MARRIED

On Sunday evening last, by the Rev. Doctor Moore, FRANCIS LYNCH, Esq. Counsellor at Law, to Miss MARIA ROSE, both of this City. On Monday last, JAMES ANDERSON, Esq. of South-Carolina, to Miss WEN, of this City.

Mr. Harrison,

By publishing the following marriage (as a fact) you will much oblige an OLD CUSTOMER.

On Saturday the 17th ult. by the Rev. Mr. Moore, Mr. CORNELIUS CRYGIER, of this City, to the amiable Miss HANNAH PARKER, of Shrewsbury.

Ye 've wing'd hours your flight,

Your downy flight prepare,

With every soft delight,

To sooth the brave, and fair.

DIED

On Saturday last, after a very lingering and painful illness, Miss MARY V. WAGENEN, in the 23d year of her age, a young lady much regretted by all her acquaintance.

Could sweetness, virtue, or the world's applause
Screen mortals from the debt to Nature due?
Surely the execution of her laws

Might be postponed, nor Death the curtain drew.

But not our wish, or all our earnest cries,

Could counteract the Great Almighty's plan,

Reign'd, she languish'd, pines away and dies

A common fate design'd by God for man.

Why mourn her loss while surely 'tis her gain,

Her days of sorrow are for ever fled;

Her happiness commenc'd, need fear no pain;

She lives tho number'd here amongst the dead.

Stop! let us mourn no more; but pave the road,

To follow this once sweet angelic face;

Esteeming life as but a short abode,

Which must be left as not our dwelling-place.

Just published in one folio volume,

And to be sold at the Book-store of Mr. Samuel London,

The Laws of the State of North-Carolina,

REVISED and collected agreeably to Act of Assembly, by James Iredell, now one of the Associate Justices of the supreme court of the United States.

Gentlemen desirous of supplying themselves with this work, are requested to be so early in their application, as the copies not disposed of soon, will be removed out of town. O. 3.

A GOOD HOUSE MAID,

WANTED immediately. Enquire at No. 6, Garden-Street, or at this Printing-Office.

T H E A T R E.

On MONDAY EVENING, the 10th inst. will be performed, a TRAGEDY, called, DOUGLAS.

Young Norval,	Mr. Martin,
Lord Randolph,	Mr. Hallam,
Old Norval,	Mr. Henry,
Officer,	Mr. Woods,
And Glenalvon,	Mr. Harper,
Anna,	Mrs. Hamilton,
And Lady Randolph,	Mrs. Henry,

An occasional PROLOGUE by Mr. Hallam.
End of the Play, DANCING by Mr. Durang.
To which will be added, a FARCE, called,
HIGH LIFE below STAIRS.

Lovel,	Mr. Hallam,
Duke's Servant,	Mr. Harper,
Sir Harry's Servant,	Mr. Henry,
Coachman,	Mr. Ryan,
Kingston,	Mr. Robinson,
Tom,	Mr. Woods,
And Philip,	Mr. Martin,
Lady Bab's Servant, with a song,	Mrs. Rankin,
Lady Charlotte,	Mrs. Hamilton,
And Kitty,	Miss Take,

The doors will be opened at half an hour after 5, and the curtain drawn up precisely at half an hour after 6 o'clock. VIVAT REPUBLICA.

Reading and Elocution, &c.

MESSIEURS GRAHAM and JOHNSTON respectfully inform the public, That on Monday, the 3d of October, an EVENING-SCHOOL will be opened at their Academy, No. 19, Little Queen-street; where the following branches will be taught, viz. Writing, Accounts, Book-Keeping, Geography, &c. the genuine pronunciation of the English language, a correct and graceful manner of reading and reciting selected passages from the English classics; also a grammatical knowledge of that language, rendered plain and comprehensive by rules and remarks, selected from grammarians of established reputation.

Mr. Johnston continues to teach his more advanced pupils, the following useful and ornamental branches, viz. Grammatical and Rhetorical punctuation, inflections of the voice, emphasis, rhetorical figures, &c. the knowledge of which is absolutely necessary to read with propriety and grace in prose and poetry.

N. B. Young gentlemen, who wish to be taught Book-Keeping at this Academy, are desired to begin as soon as possible, as it will take all the time the Evening-School is open to finish the different sets commonly taught here.

Young Ladies and Gentlemen taught privately at their own houses. Further particulars may be known at the Academy.

New-York, September 29.

35

SIX DOLLARS REWARD.

RUN away from his Master, the 1st inst. an Apprentice boy named STRATFIELD LUCAS-LANCASHIRE, 19 years of age, about four feet nine inches high, well set, black hair, and of a dark complexion, a Taylor by trade. Had on when he went away, a long brown coat, a light Waistcoat and Fustian Trowsers, and took with him a short Calico Coat, and several waistcoats and breeches, of different colours, and sundry other articles of wearing apparel.

It is probable he is gone either to North-Carolina or London, having relations in both places. Masters of vessels and others are forbid harbouring or carrying off said Apprentice at their peril. The above reward and all reasonable charges will be paid on the delivery of said apprentice to his master.

New-York, Oct. 1. WILLIAM STYMETS.

The COURT of APOLLO.

THE MORALIST.

The HIDING-PLACE.

HAIL sov'reign love that first began,
The scheme to rescue fallen man;
Hail matchless, free, eternal grace,
That gave my soul a Hiding-Place.
Against the God that rules the sky,
I fought with hands uplifted high;
Despis'd the mentions of his grace,
Too proud to seek a Hiding-Place.
Enwrap in thick Egyptian night,
And fond of darkness more than light,
Madly I ran the sinful race,
Secure without a Hiding-Place.

But thus the eternal counsel ran,
Almighty Love arrest that man;
I felt the arrows of distress,
And saw that I'd no Hiding-Place,

Indignant Justice stood in view,
To Sina's fiery mount I flew;
But Justice cry'd with frowning face,
This mountain is no Hiding-Place.

Ere long a heav'nly voice I heard,
And Mercy's angel form appear'd,
She led me on with placid pace,
To Jesus as my Hiding-Place.

Should storms of sevenfold thunder roll,
And shake the globe from pole to pole,
No flaming bolt should daunt my face,
For Jesus is my Hiding-Place.

On him almighty vengeance fell,
That must have sunk the world to hell:
He bore it for the chosen race,
And thus became their Hiding-Place.

A few more rolling suns at most,
Shall land us on fair Canaan's coast,
Where we shall sing the song of grace,
And see our glorious Hiding-Place.

R.

A FARM,
PLEASANTLY situated on the Banks of Hudson's River, in German-Town, Columbia county, containing 114 acres, of which a great part is excellent meadow, and a sufficiency of good wood-land: A good house, outhouses and barn; also, 26 acres, on which is a good tan-yard, and may be converted into excellent meadow. The whole will be sold, either together or separate, as may best suit the purchaser, and immediate possession given: There is also 10 or 12 loads of good hay, which will be sold cheap.

Enquire of the Printer, or at No. 1, Vandewater-street.

N. B. With trifling expence a good fishing place may be made.

New-York, Sept. 10, 1791.

74 tf.

ANTHONY OGILVIE,

No. 3, Peck-Slip,

INFORMS his friends and the Public, that he has removed from No. 18, Little Dock street, to No. 3, Peck-Slip, where he continues to carry on House and Sign painting, Gilding and Glazing &c. He also paints mahogany, ebony and all kind of wood colours, marble and stone equal to the colour of stone, in the neatest manner. And he flatters himself that he will give general satisfaction to those who may favour him with their custom.

An APPRENTICE wanted to the above business.

S K I N N E R,

Surgeon Dentist,

WILL give one guinea each for live front teeth, and a generous price for any quantity of dead front teeth, apply at No. 27, John-street, opposite the Play House.

New-York, August 13, 1791.

70 4f

WHEREAS Benjamin Case, of Newburgh in the county of Ulster, Innholder, and Mary his wife, for securing the payment of fifty-pounds, current money of the State of New-York, on or before the first day of September, 1790, together with the lawful interest for the same. The further sum of £.50 like current money aforesaid, on or before the 1st day of May, 1791, with the lawful interest thereof. The further sum of £.133 6 8 on or before the first day of May, 1792, with the lawful interest thereof. The further sum of £.133 6 8 on or before the first day of May, 1793 with the lawful interest thereof. And the further sum of £.133 6 8 on or before the first day of May, 1794, together with the lawful interest thereof, according to the condition of a certain bond or obligation, bearing date the 16th day of April, in the year of our Lord 1790, given by him the said Benjamin Case to John Anderson, also of Newburg in the county aforesaid, mariner, did, on the day and year aforesaid, mortgage to the said John Anderson, All that certain Messuage or Dwelling House and lot, piece, or parcel of Ground, situate lying and being in Newburg aforesaid, known and distinguished in a map or chart made by Colonel Thomas Palmer, of the township of Newburg aforesaid, by number 6, and is bounded on the south by lot Number 5, on the west by Water-street, on the north by lot Number 7, and on the east by Hudson's River, containing in breadth in front and rear, 154 feet, and in length on each side 100 feet, according to the dimensions of the same laid down in the map or chart aforesaid. Together with a certain dock or wharf, called and known by the name of the Continental Dock;
with a covenant in the said mortgage, that in case default should be made in the payment of any or either of the said sums of money, at any or either of the days or times limited and appointed for the payment of the same. That then it should be lawful for the said John Anderson, his heirs and assigns, at any time or times, directly and immediately, after such default should be made, to grant bargain, sell and dispose of the said mortgaged premises, and every part and parcel thereof, at Public Vendue, pursuant to an act of the legislature of the State of New-York, in such case made and provided; and out of the monies arising from the sale thereof, to retain and to keep into his or their hands the whole of the aforesaid several sums of money, as well those that were to become due at any future period, as those that were then due, together with interests and costs as by the said mortgage recorded in the Clerk's office, of the County of Ulster, reference being thereunto had, may more fully and at large appear: AND WHEREAS, default has been made in the payment of one of the said instalments, at the time mentioned and appointed in the said mortgage for the payment thereof. NOTICE is therefore hereby given, that unless the whole amount of the said instalment, together with the interest thereof, due in and by virtue of the bond and mortgage aforesaid, shall be paid, the said mortgaged premises will be sold at Public Auction, on the premises, on Wednesday the twenty-seventh day of October, at twelve of the clock in the forenoon of the same day, pursuant to the powers contained in the said mortgage, and by force and virtue of the act above-mentioned.
Dated the 21st day of January, Anno Dom, 1791.

141—6 m.

JOHN ANDERSON.

JOHN GREENWOOD,

SURGEON DENTIST

And Operator for the Teeth,

Has Removed to No. 5, Vesey-street, side of St Paul's-Church,

WHOSE abilities is universally approved by seven years successful practice in this city. He transplants, makes and cleans the teeth as usual. Prices as follows:

Transplants teeth, 3 guineas each,
Grafts natural teeth, 3 dollars each,
Makes and fixes artificial teeth, from 8 to 20s.
each,
Cleans the teeth, from 8 to 20s.

He has a peculiar method of fixing artificial teeth, which are not to be equalled by any other artificial teeth, as to beauty, firmness or durability.

Tooth powder, 2/6 per box.

N. B. Patent and all kinds of electrical machines, with medical and experimental apparatus for sale. Enquire as above, or at Mr. Clark Greenwood, mathematical instrument maker, No.
199, Water-street, opposite the Coffee-house.

WHEREAS Stephen M'Crea, of the city of New-York, and Mary his wife, on the sixteenth day of October, 1784, for securing the payment of eight hundred pounds, current money of New-York, on the sixteenth of October, 1785, with interest at seven per cent. per annum, did mortgage to Ann Areson, of the same place, widow, all those certain lots situate in the outward of the said city, known, distinguished and bounded as follows, viz. lot No. 619, on the South, by Cheap Side, and lot No. 620, on the North, by Lombardstreet, each lot containing thirty feet in front and thirty feet in rear; lot No. 595, on the North, by a still house belonging to the said Stephen M'Crea and others; and on the East, by lots belonging to Anthony Rutgers and others; and on the West, by lot No. 599, belonging to William Bedlow; lot No.
601, on the front, by Catherine-street, on the North, by a house and lot then belonging to Gerar-dus Depeyster; on the West, by the said still house, and on the East, by lots then belonging to Ann Banker, Gerardus Depeyster and Henry Rutgers.
AND WHEREAS, the said eight hundred pounds, with the interest, or part thereof, is still due and unpaid. NOTICE is therefore hereby given, that the said mortgaged premises will be sold at Public Auction, at the Merchants Coffee-house, in the city of New-York, on the ninth day of February next at 12 o'clock in the forenoon of the same day, by virtue of a power contained in the said mortgage, and pursuant to the directions of the act of the legislation of this state, made and passed the 27th day of February, 1788, entitled, "An act to prevent frauds by mortgages, and for securing the purchasers of mortgaged estates."—Dated this 6th day of August, 1791.

69—6 m.

ANN ARESON.

LIVERY STABLES.

THE Subscriber informs his friends and the publiin general, that he has furnished himself with two convenient stables, (the one in Slocum-Lane, in the rear of the Bank, Hanover-Square; the other No. 1, Berkly-Street, opposite to Messrs. Charles and James Warners,) for the reception of Horses and Carriages by the day, week, month or year, at the very lowest prices. He has at the above stables, elegant Saddle and carriage horses for sale: He likewise has, for the convenience of Ladies and Gentlemen, elegant Saddle Horses and Carriages to hire, at as low a rate as any in this city. Wm. WELLS.

New-York, September 3, 1791.

N. B. At the above Stables Gentlemen may have their horses nicked in the newest and best manner, and may depend upon having the strictest attention paid them, as he has procured hands solely for those purposes.

73 4f